

Research Is Like...

Being able to make connections is an important step in the learning process. After having concluded the research stages, organize students into groups and have them draw analogies by identifying the similarities between the research process and an item. Students may represent the analogy using words and pictures to create an analogy poster.

Research Analogy Questions

- How is the research process like a cake?
- How is the research process like cheese?
- How is the research process like a key?
- How is the research process like a ladder?
- How is the research process like a diary?
- How is the research process like a menu?
- How is the research process like a river?

